

MOLLY OF THE TO WALK AGAIN "BIG BUSH" ABLE

Pale Little Cripple From North Country Now Hale and Happy

Molly from the "Big Bush" area walked across this station platform. The word "walks" is stressed, because Molly has been unable to stand back to health and happiness since she was born. She has learned to walk again through the efforts of the Jamie Red Cross children as proud as Molly. Many know a world of trouble, the struggle to make a living, the trials of life. Molly was finally crippled by an accident, and had to give up her work as a nurse and work out for the neighbors to provide for herself.

Cripples Six Years

These came Molly's accident, and she has been crippled ever since. For six years of her life she lay in the shack she made for a home, unable to move. Then the Red Cross reached out its cultural collar. She charges her slender figure to a group of guests at a party recently.

Happy Girl Now

Now Molly is on her way in粲 gown, shoes, stockings, decorations made to her special needs. Instead of a happy laughing little Alberta, she is here to help her mother and full of

And to the Red Cross kiddies the her a living monument to child hood's whininess and practical honesty.

THE TURKS AND THE LEAGUE

The Turks object that the League of Nations is trying to act as an arbiter in the dispute over Mosul. It is to be hoped that for once the Turk is right, and that the League will continue to act in that capacity whenever and wherever Kemal and his outfit are concerned. If the League cannot lay down the law to the Turks and their ilk the prospect of its being able to maintain peace where large nations are concerned is exceedingly remote.

The Turk is not a bit intimidated by the long range fusillade from the typewriters at Geneva. He would just as soon defy the Powers collectively as League of Nations as defies them individually in the way he used to do before the League was formed. And the Turk has effected Europe long enough that his intent is not to be lightly discarded when he says by his actions that he thinks he can defy them just as safely under the new conditions as he did under the old.

MOTOR CARS AND STREET CARS

Hamilton is threatened with the suspension of its street railway service. The reason is said to be that the tax-payers turned down a proposal that the city buy the system from the company. The company apparently cannot make the enterprise pay, and would find it cheaper to stop the ears. That is a new and interesting phase of the old issue of private versus public ownership. Where in the past that question has arisen it has usually been because a company wanted to get possession of a street railway franchise while the tax-payers were eager to either hold the valuable concession themselves or get the best price possible for it. In Hamilton the situation is reversed. The company does not want the franchise, and neither do the tax-payers.

It may be suggested that the automobile is at the back of the trouble. It is at the back of street railroads' troubles now in a good many cities. The motor car has rubbed the street rail way everywhere of a tremendous amount of traffic and is taking more from it as the years pass. Fare has been raised generally in an effort to keep these enterprises solvent, but there is a limit beyond which high fares kill traffic and make a street railway's financial position worse.

Already the street railway has ceased to be a highly desirable enterprise in which to invest capital. In many places systems are maintained only as necessities, and operated without profits or at an actual loss. The motor car is increasing in numbers yearly, and now the motor bus threatens to break into competition as a surface conveyance in some respects a more satisfactory conveyance than the rumbling and stuffy street car.

ROAD MONEY AND ROAD MAKING

A conference regarding highways, railways, and other matters of general moment was held in Ottawa last week, attended by representatives of some of the Provincial Governments, of the steam railways, and of the Good Roads Association. A despatch says that what began as a movement for "co-operation of the provinces for solving highway problems" resolved itself into "a hindrance of the Federal Government for continuance of its financial aid to the provinces for highway improvement."

The kind of "co-operation" which consists in trying to get somebody else to foot the bills is not by any means confined to Provincial Governments nor to high roads. It is a general and far-reaching conclusion that when provincial and authority conferences, the outcome will be a plan for a raid on the Federal treasury, and that when the subject of discussion is roads the resolution will be in line with the idea that the Dominion should provide the money, but let the Provinces spend it and control the roads.

The Federal Government, under the Dominion highway scheme, has, for years been giving a very substantial amount of assistance to the Provincial Governments in the building of permanent roads. If the "hindrance" consisted only in a request that that arrangement continue, all well and good. But if the idea is that the Dominion should hand over money to the Provinces to be spent in the making or maintenance of roads which are not permanent, it deserves to be promptly rejected.

The Dominion Government under existing conditions cannot grant large amounts of money for road construction without borrowing the money. The current expenditure of revenue and any extra outlay has to be made at a capital charge against future taxation. Borrowing money for the making of dirt roads, which will have to be replaced before the bonds are paid, is waste; none the less so if the Dominion does the borrowing and the Provinces do the spending. If the Dominion is to undertake any large responsibility for the making of roads, they ought to be roads which will outlive the debt incurred.

OUR DAILY POEM

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THANKSGIVING

For the glory of the day,
With its duty and its play;
For Thy mercies manifold,
Unmeasured, unexpressed;
For the precious right to live,
Now our gratitude we give.

For the leaf upon the tree,
And the flower on the bough;
For the countless joys we take
Every morning as we wake;
Love and strength and laughter sweet,
These poor thanks we now repeat.

For the good friends ever near,
With their words of faith and cheer
And for all that makes this life
Something more than selfish strife.
For Thy care on land and sea
Now we give our thanks to Thee!

Something Else to Swear Off Of

DR. FRANK CRANE'S EDITORIAL

"IT'S GOOD ENOUGH!"

WHEN some one doing a piece of work says, "Let it go; that's good enough!" it is generally a pretty good sign that it is not good enough.

If it were no one would need convincing.

"Primitizing men" is a classification that fits most of those who have done big things and not given credit for them.

Taking pains is a fairly good definition of that zenith of human efficiency called "genius." Probably the most prevalent weakness of the human animal is a lack of persistence; of seeing a job through to the end of sticking at a piece of work until it is well done.

In the struggle for advancement in the world men often times have the same idea about it and fight along neck and neck for a time. The one who pulls ahead on the final home-stretch under such conditions is almost always the one who has trained himself to take pains.

A short而无耻的龙是 the dragon every one has to slay.

The "Tobacco" people ages ago printed this riddle for its readers:

"What am I?"

"I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world."
"I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations."

I steal in the United States alone hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

I cause no noise and I find my victims among the rich and the poor alike, the young and the old, the strong and the weak.

I zoom up in such proportions I eat my share over every field of labor, from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

"I lurk in unseen places and do most of my work silently.

You are warned against me, but you need not fear me."

"I am not drunk, hated or selfishness. What am I?"

The answer to the riddle was:

"I am tobacco."

UNCOMMON SENSE

—By JOHN BLAKE—

Don't Worry About Your Brain

An English psychologist finds that the brain while white to resource people who are fond of eating heavily, is not very alert when he is digesting his dinner.

He tells them that if they will take care of their general health in conducting their business, their brain will take care of itself.

It will be commented that that is all well and good, but that the brain is the most important organ in the body.

It is not the business man who eats the most, but the man who takes the least exercise.

Instantaneous would have few patients if they only housed the brain in a state of complete idleness and overwork. Most of the patients are men and women, in middle age, who have never taken time to take care of their general health.

People who have brains, and who are fond of eating, are apt to have brain fog or brain exhaustion, but those who have never had any such trouble would never get such a condition.

When James Russell Lowell was writing his "Voices of the Past," he fell back himself in his study chair, and wrote his book.

Then mental wrecks who have been writing books for years, break down under the strain, because it has never been scheduled to keep them in shape.

FAIR GROUNDS OFFICES BUSY

Exhibition Association Is Kept Active Between Big Shows

The exhibition offices in the city are busy these days, notwithstanding the fact that many people think there is no room for them in the winter months, the fall and summer.

In addition to having the year's business audited, and statement prepared for the members and shareholders on Wednesday last December, the association put the price list for the coming show which will be held at the end of January.

It is also busy making up the bills accounts for the sale of wool and other goods at the 22nd Edmonton Exhibition.

Although these accounts entail considerable time and trouble, the grade of wool sent in, each item is checked and the 22nd accounts and books sent to the wool contributors.

Work Done Here.

The work of the association is conducted by the Alberta Provincial Dressing Board, Mr. Frank S. Stark the manager of the exhibition, in secretary, and Mr. W. H. McRae, manager of the staff through the committee which many years ago adopted the motto "The more we know about cattle the better we can help to assist the farming fraternity in the building up new breeds, bringing the cattle closer together, extending the range of the cattle, and increasing the cost of the exhibition association."

"Where City and Country Meet," for some years has been well known and widely correspondence, and the association has been placed in books not only in Canada, but in the United States and in points to British Columbia, and Saskatchewan, and the stock shows in the United States.

One ewe was sent to Macau, and another to Australia, and one to Japan, and one to India, alone.

It is the opinion of the association that the farmers in Northern Alberta are slowly but surely becoming more interested in the improvement of their herds.

Improve Park.

The exhibition association has had in mind the desirability of establishing features in Bowden Park. Last year it was hoped that the park would be available for setting up tennis courts and basketball courts, but unfortunately the contract did not work out, and the fact that no money was given by the council in compensation.

Justice starts has now been made with the city, and the stockmen, the landowner Mitchell and the city council, together with President Macmillan Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the exhibition.

IS SUING FOR FALSE ARREST

Argument by Counsel Will Be Presented to Bench Monday

"Wilcox was概况, having then got the car back," Hugh C. Macdonald, K.C., told the court after Inspector J. D. Nicholson, A.P.P., had given the explanations of Wilcox for the charges against him.

MacRae is suing the McLaughlin family for $11,000 for false arrest on a charge of driving an unregistered car, and the defense claims he was through and with the car which he had bought on terms.

Wilcox told the inspector that he had learned that McRae had been arrested for driving an unregistered car, and after finding that the only person on the charge he had was a man named MacRae, he had released him.

The defense, Officer Turner of the liquor branch, said that on the occasion referred to he had been advised to arrest MacRae, and when he heard him argue with Wilcox over the question of the car, he had let him go.

In getting the car out, McRae parked near the dance hall at Sylvan Lake, he swore.

The evidence having been heard yesterday and Friday, Justice Boyle will hear the argument by counsel Monday.

FRANC-CANADIAN AUTHOR NO JOKER

"Dr. Drummond, author of 'The Habitant' and other French-Canadian novels, and Dr. Edward Dean Howes of the Faculty of Agriculture in addressing a meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, said:

"It is true that most of his poetry contains a good deal of the humor of the French, but nevertheless, he is a poet who has never written literature of which I could say is really serious."

Dean Howes was present, and he said that the farmers in Northern Alberta are slowly but surely becoming more interested in the improvement of their herds.

IMPROPTU COURT IS HELD IN NORTHERN SEASIDE

Five Are Penalized for Fishing Out of Season

For fishing out of season, five fishermen at Peter Pond lake were fined $12 each at an impromptu court held in the northern Alberta prairie last week.

Word received by the fisheries officer who made the seizure, rather than the fisherman, was that the men paid in a total of $75, while 21 others were fined $10 to $20 pounds of whitefish.

The men stated to the fishery officer who made the seizure, rather than the fisherman, that they had been fishing for two or three days.

The men stated to the fishery officer who made the seizure, rather than the fisherman, that they had been fishing for two or three days.

Angus McRae, the fisheries officer, provided care was taken to avoid exposure to cold, it is often necessary to go out in the middle of the night, and in order to prevent serious complications, such as pneumonia, especially among young adults or older people, special care should be exercised, and the weather, not to go out if the weather is cold. The most serious complication is pneumonia, and it is important in taking food, as the patient must have a good appetite, and great effort and pain, and speech and mastication are sometimes greatly impaired. Stage of Incubation.

The period of time which elapsed between getting the infection and the appearance of the symptoms, called the incubation period, varies from 10 to 15 days, and this circumstance constitutes one of the most serious complications.

By Dr. T. H. Whittle, B.A., M.D., Medical Officer of Health for Edmonton.

FEATURES WOMAN'S REALM CLUBS

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

In action altogether incomparable with happy married life? Mrs. Carson, of the Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club, "Do not bring your boy to the trade," is a good motto for all wives who have had joyous or her married life is not favorable to general happiness, according to her view. And yet would Jane Welsh Carson, the author of "The Little House with her sarcastic wit and scathing tongue, attracted to Thomas Carlyle because he was a man of great deportment, have been any happier than she was? She was not, because he was a "swindler" in contemplation of the lives of his wife and children, which went on peacefully through the generations. Few married women can say that their genus itself is much less responsible for the unhappiness of their characters and natures of the two mainly concerned. The selfish, irascible, jealous, and unkind wife has made his wife just as miserable as the wife of the unkind, unkind husband; while the sagacious, uncomplaining wife would not doubt have given up her husband for a man whose greater friend and admirer he was not. And a spark of genius in him.

Mrs. Van Taek entered informally at a small bridge on Friday evening.

Mrs. L. T. Thompson of Lacombe, in town visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bryden, for a few days during the week, will be here Saturday, who is away on a business trip to Brandon, Manitoba.

Mr. J. Mountford, 1610 121st Street, Edmonton, came from Timmins on Sunday, December 6, on the invitation of Judge and Mrs. McLean and Minister Linn, en route to Jacksonville, Florida.

CAPITAL CLUB DANCE IN MACDONALD WAS DELIGHTFUL EVENT

Christmas colors in an artistic decorative scheme, with streamers drawn from the lights across the room, and the decorations for the dance arranged by the Capital Club, were the chief feature of the function of Friday in the Macdonald Hotel. Pretty faces and smiling eyes and voices were much in evidence, and the atmosphere was one to linger in. The band, which had been playing in the theatre played for the dancing, and Miss Kathleen Murray, a graceful childlike figure in a fluffy flannel dress, was an attraction of the evening. The band, which included the 12 Somerville, Mrs. Percy Tugge, Mrs. C. J. Davies, and others, the arrangements and decorations were under the charge of the executive committee, which consists of Miss Muriel Kuhns, president, Jean Atkinson, Pauline Lewis, and Mrs. E. C. PHONIC RECITES SUTHERLAND

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales has paid a visit to St. James's Palace a number of times recently, and his wife, Princess Elizabeth, and his two daughters and about to leave for Australia. There were 60 fans and 100 people present.

He is now in Canada, and is going out under the Grouse Settlement.

The prince's hands were each with each woman and child, while his wife was with him, and, as we have seen, the young couple were in full bloom.

And why should a woman work as well as a man? Why should an able-bodied woman be supported by someone else's labor? Every one, for a grain of intelligence, needs it.

It is the idle woman with nothing to do, and having the means of doing nothing, who creates trouble.

It is the idle woman who frequents the afternoon tea places who goes into circulation with her friends, who make their husbands with tell extravagances.

I think there is nothing more unfortunate than that men have so long been slow to realize that it was a kind of slavery to have a woman at home.

And I could wish when I remember the fine men I have known who have killed themselves to keep this wife from having to do the work, and in whom we have the responsibility of their salvation, and in whom we have the responsibility of their happiness.

Men have got to be educated up to the point where they will abandon the old superstition that it is a honor to live on a cushion and sew up a seam, and feed upon strawberries, sugar and cream. Also, they must be taught to run home to their wives when they get home.

The prince's hands were each with each woman and child, while his wife was with him, and, as we have seen, the young couple were in full bloom.

And WHY SHOULD DIX? How should a man and his wife divide the family income?

ANSIOUS BRIDGEMAN.

Answer: If you're a correspondent, who signs himself "Contented Husband," answer that question, as an ounce of experience is worth a pound of theory.

He says: "I believe that a woman's work in the home should be regarded as an important factor in the welfare of the family.

She should be given a place outside the home. With this thought of equality of service we have used a plan that has worked successfully for many years.

It is the idle woman with nothing to do, and having the means of doing nothing, who creates trouble.

It is the idle woman who frequents the afternoon tea places who goes into circulation with her friends, who make their husbands with tell extravagances.

I think there is nothing more unfortunate than that men have so long been slow to realize that it was a kind of slavery to have a woman at home.

And I could wish when I remember the fine men I have known who have killed themselves to keep this wife from having to do the work, and in whom we have the responsibility of their salvation, and in whom we have the responsibility of their happiness.

Men have got to be educated up to the point where they will abandon the old superstition that it is a honor to live on a cushion and sew up a seam, and feed upon strawberries, sugar and cream. Also, they must be taught to run home to their wives when they get home.

The prince's hands were each with each woman and child, while his wife was with him, and, as we have seen, the young couple were in full bloom.

And WHY SHOULD DIX? How should a man and his wife divide the family income?

Answer: If you're a correspondent, who signs himself "Contented Husband," answer that question, as an ounce of experience is worth a pound of theory.

He says: "I believe that a woman's work in the home should be regarded as an important factor in the welfare of the family.

She should be given a place outside the home. With this thought of equality of service we have used a plan that has worked successfully for many years.

And why should a woman work as well as a man? Why should an able-bodied woman be supported by someone else's labor? Every one, for a grain of intelligence, needs it.

REPEAT HOT APPLICATION

BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Nail Biters.

Dear Lois Leeds—Can you tell me how to get rid of biting my fingernails? My hands are a very ugly sight. I have tried everything you can think of. What can I do?

Answer—Ask your druggist for an after-bath lotion. This preparation will help. An implement to take off the cuticles may be what you cannot change the habit. Improve their appearance by washing them often, cleansing them at bedtime, apply some butter and massage them. Wear gloves now and for a few minutes. Hold them bent and resting on a chair arm and hand downward toward the elbow. Keep your hands warm. Use a soft, non-abrasive rubber glove for dishwashing. When you write, send a stamp, always keep my leaflet on the care of the hands.

Pustular Acne.

Dear Lois Leeds—I am 15 years old and weigh 120 pounds. How can I can I remove the acne from my arms below the shoulders. I have a severe case of acne. Answer—You should weigh no more than 125 pounds; preferably 120. Take a warm bath in hot water and hold it over your head. Rub the skin with a cloth until the sweat glands are open. Then brush and warm water will wash away the dirt. Wash again with soap and water. Apply a thick lotion on the affected areas. Do not scratch for minutes before washing it off. Do not use soap or water on the acne. Once a month, I use a warm, strong sulphur precipitate. This treatment daily. Be very careful with cosmetics. Take Jane, pastilles, and a glass of milk with a beverage. Eat simply—whole wheat, cheese, fish, fruit, vegetables, and dried fruits. Five glasses of water daily.

Brown Spots.

Dear Lois Leeds—For four or five years I have had brown spots gradually increasing on my face and a few on my arms. I have seen a doctor and he says they are not serious. He has given me no directions without success. They are not painful. I eat well and I eat little meat.

Answer—the patches are probably freckles. If they do not respond to external treatment, when this is the case the best method is to have a combination by a competent physician. Do not use any of the remedies. They may be dangerous to your health.

The Public Ledger Company.

Fairhaven Fashions—You are planning a new suit, you will do well to consider short sleeves, a short skirt, a short opening and one is short, short, look like jackets.

From Queen Elizabeth's Court.

Dear Lois Leeds—For a few months I have been noticing a single brown spot on my arm. It is about the size of a pin-head. It is not painful. I have seen a doctor and he says it is not serious.

CHAPTER XVII THE NEWS

Martin Langford was beginning an embittered existence when he awoke at the door. "Let me explain," she said, with a smile. "I am right, wife; write her hands were clasped together tightly. You may have seen what James Blount wrote you. You must know, James and I have had an understanding."

"I don't wonder at my dead son," he said. "I wonder at his wife. She doesn't wonder at it. If he often behaves as he behaved, I wonder at her."

"I must have a few words with Martin Blount. Doesn't he know—"

"No, he doesn't," replied Stephenie. "We quarreled and I made up my mind to come down to him. He followed me and found me at the station. He told me he had no time. Martin had no head for business."

"He could not go to the Arctic Ridge. He had no place to go except the security of Tempest Vane for Dorian Tempots to offer. It was Dorian Tempots who stood behind him."

"He was silent for a long time. Then he said, 'I am your father's son. What do you think you can do?'

"'Nothing,' I said. 'I'll put the whole affair before my friend and offer you any hope I fear less.'

"It was at this point that old Doctor Tempot behaved very well."

"Martin had no head for business, and because Martin wouldn't let me have it, I am to do."

Martin Langford, but not her father, had a round of hysterics to her tone.

"Please my soul, you will stay here just as long as ever you like. When I think that he died for me, I am sorry."

"I am his husband. Moreover, I shall see about that. We shall most certainly see about that."

"We are all here with great assurance. 'I am for Blount being your husband, and I am for you to be a girl in your position and of course, I am for you to be a wife to your husband, and that means a lot in these days.'

"I can't understand why married men want to be married to their wives. They are seeking."

"Very tired, father," she said. "I am going to bed now. I am sick today because I had to go back tomorrow. I am not afraid. I am not afraid. I am not afraid."

Martin Langford spoke together with his wife, but did not speak again.

"I am not afraid. I am not afraid. I am not afraid. I am not afraid."

"I am not afraid.
